To-day's Schedule.

MORNING AND AFTERNOON GAMES. Brooklyn in New York.

Two interborough games were played at the Polo Grounds yesterday and the Giants won them both. They were sulphuric battles both, and both fought to a bitter finish, surcharged with fine pitching in the first game, hard hitting in the second and wentling. wrangling with the umpire, with Bill Dahlen, the presiding genius of the Brooklyns, senior wrangler. The scores were 2 to 1 in the first game, which was a pitching tussle between Marquard and Rucker, and 10 to 9 in the second game, in which the batting was much harder, with twirlers coming and going in droves and even a more exciting scrap than the first, though there wasn't the sentimental interest of the first.

What added an extra zest to the first game was that it was between Rucker and Marquard. If Marquard survived the test he would have won nineteen straight and created a new record in major league base-ball for straight wins by a pitcher. He did win it, but he was skating on thin ice so often that time and again it looked as if Rucker was the boy who was going and the Brooklyns nine off Marquard.

The Brooklyn luminary also was much steadler than Marquard, who was very nervous and wilder than is his Nevertheless, the Rube tightened up hero-ically with men on bases, and that, with the glittering support he received, resulted in fourteen Brooklyns being left on bases. Rucker pitched a splendid game and deserved better than defeat. enigmatic change of pace, a slow drop utter inability of his mates to land an occasional blow when opportunity beckened, together with an error making inning, cut the ground from under Rucker's feet through no fault of his. In the second game the Superbas rattled off eighteen hits to New York's nine, and had ten men left on bases. That was a total of twenty-four who perished on the sacks during the afternoon. Both teams scored in allopathic quantities in the second, but the Giants were more successful in getting men around once they started to circumnavigate the buoys. In that scheme of things which nets big scoring in proportion to hits the Giants put it all over the Superbas, who battled just as hard, but not with the same get there results.

scheme of things which nets big scoring in proportion to hits the Giants put it all over the Superbas, who battled just as hard, but not with the same set there results.

It was a slashing fisht all the way in hoth games, touch and go, and the fans as well as the players were at high tension. After the caim of the Boston engagements these were red hot mills. Dathien and the outset of the first game objected to the position of Manquard's right foot, decising that it was behind the rubber; but Brennan wouldn't listen to the claim and finally sent Bill to the bench. But that little disagreement was nothing compared to the turbulent kick promoted by Dahlen and other Brooklynites in the eighth iming of the second game. The transtubelnes got all heated up when Smodgrass, as they said, interfered whin a play ar the plate and so put the Giants in the way of two runs.

The Brooklyns were a run shead when the play arose and two runs made a heap of difference to them. Previous to this they had suffered from what looked to be two incorrect decisions in the way of called strikes, and their mood was far from cherubic. Dahlen and Northen were sent from the field, and there was a long delay near the dinner hour ere tranquillity and brotherly love were restored.

Wheat's fly left two Superbas languishing on the bases in the first inning of the second game. In the second inning Hummel walked, Tooley hit to Marquard, who held the ball too long and didn't set anybody, and Miller filled the corners with a single. There was none out, but three outs emanated from as many flees, nobody scoring. In New York's second Beeker forgot to retouch second on his way back when Herzor filed to Moran and was doubled.

The Brooklyns had three on bases in the third with none out and yet put only one run in the trophy room. To begin the outs Hummel fannes. Tooley sent at wit to Becker. The latter in instance of the player of the player. The latter is not the player of the player of the player o on his way back when Herzog flied to Moran and was doubled.

The Brooklyns had three on bases in the third with none out and yet put only one run in the trephy room. To begin the outs Hummel fanned. Tooley sent a fly to Becker. The latter in his hurry to throw to the plate muffed, and Red Smith hiked home. Becker had time to pick up the ball and throw to second for a force of Daubert, but threw too high. However, his second case of remissness cost nothing, as Miller and Rucker popped flies and left the bases tenanted to their capacity.

The Gianis tied the score in the fourth and without the suggestion of a hit. There were two out when Smith made a poor throw on Murray. He of the Titlan thatch stole second. Becker put up an infield fly. It was Daubert's ball, but that citizen of the Long Island metropolis backed away, and Teoley dashed over from short and tried to save the situation. He was running so hard that he dropped the ball. Murray scored on the error and Becker scooted all the way to third. He was left when Miller broke into the literary set by reaching over and taking a foul in the press gallery.

The Giants fielded swiftly, blanking the Brooklyns right along, despite the fact that the latter had men on bases in every inning of the game. Moran tried to Steal third in the sixth as Smith struck out Herzog made an amazing back handed the had tagged Moran—a sample of the way the New Yorks were playing.

In the seventh Murray doubled to deep left and Becker outfooted a hum! Herzeg sid Becker outfooted a hum Herzeg sid by Moran was too short for Murray to cast loose from third, but he took the trail and scored when Meyers jolited long fly to Wheat. Northen and Daubert and length to had been bett and be and an amazing back handed long fly to Wheat. Northen and Daubert and length to wheat.

By beating the Brooklyns in the first Rame, yesterday Marquard won his ninetenth straight game, attaining thehigh water mark in that line. So far as can be learned from the records no other pitcher in a major league ever did this. It was a battle of the giants between Marquard and Rucker, and Marquard had his integenest fight of the season. By taking the second game the Giants made their own straight. The Phillies downed the Bostons and the Brooklyns sill down to seventh place.

into the diamond and both Shafer and Fletcher scored.

Then the Brooklyn kick. Dahlen and his aids rushed up to Brennan and wanted Snodgrass called out for interference. They declared that Shafer would have been put out if Snodgrass hadn't been in the way. He probably would have, but just the same Snodgrass did duck as if to escape the throw, and if Erwin had tossed the ball a bit higher

NOTES OF THE DIAMOND.

There was only applause for Becker after he had dropped a fly in the first game, and he de-served it, for he has been making a lot more good plays than errors lately.

Wilson dropped a throw at the plate and allowed Moran to acore in the second game. Moran collided with Wilson, his jaw bearing the brunt of the collision and jarring him. Moran was the hitting kid in this game.

Merkie's hesitation gave Wheat a hit. There was a man on first when Wheat grounded to Merkie. The latter started to throw to second changed his mind, and then it was too late to collar Wheat.

Snodgrass played close to the foul line for Moran several times and thereby relired that busy little man twice, but the Brooklynite managed to wedge in five hits during the double bill.

The Milwaukee club asked the National Com-mission to annul the deal whereby it was to get Pitcher Pflester from the Cubs. This the com-mission has done, declaring that Pflester's insub-ordination caused complications, so that he is not entitled to the least consideration.

The claim of the Brooklyn club against Omaha for $750 for Player Davidson has been granted by the National Commission.

Prize for Caprice. Fifty-one yachts started in the annual regatta of the American Yacht Clubyes-terday, and while this fleet is not as large as has been seen in some re-gattas, it had quality and it was remark-able for its close finishes. The committee on board Commodore J. B. Macdon-ough's flagship Jessica selected courses that sent the yachts to the east north-east on the first leg. The wind was light from south southwest, so that it was a broad reach. Soon after the yachts

When the signal sounded Winsome was first and in the windward position, Istalena was at the lee end of the line and Aurora was last. Each broke out a balloon jib topsail just before reaching the line and it was a broad reach to the first mark off Woolsey's Reef. The Marshail won his game against Dr. Vidmar, formerly of Prague, but now a resident of Budapest. His other four games were drawn, and he finished with a total of three points out of a possible five. Schlechter also won from Dr. Vidnar, drawing the rest. Maroczy, who lost to Duras, and Duras, who lost to Dr. Vidmar, divided the third and fourth prizes with two and a half points each. Telchmann and Dr. Vidmar, with two points each, brought up the rear. The tournament was contested at the rooms of the Budapest Sakk Otthen (Chess Home), a social organization in the fashionable quarter of the Hungarian capital in their games the masters were limited to the queen's gambit declined.
